Import/Exports of Asia

Since Asia is so large, there are many things that they can create and grow that other continents can not. To sell to other countries, they have the export, or send out their products for sale. When they buy items from other places, the product is brought to them, or imported.

Using the map above, mark each product that each country exports in the graph below. Put a check mark if the country DOES export and put an X if the country does NOT export that product.
